WE NOMINATE

Americo Castro, a citizen of "two worlds" and probably this country's most distinguished interpreter of the meaning of Spanish civilization, whose current University lectures on "Man and the Humanities" are attracting the attention they so richly deserve. In keeping with the individualistic tradition he personifies for his associates, Castro this past week suddenly abandoned his announced topic, decided to extend a publicized four-lecture cycle into a totally unexpected fifth lecture. The one reaction to this action will be an even larger-than-usual attendance on March 11th for the "added finale."

Called to Princeton in 1940 to fill the Ford Professorship of Spanish, this 66-year-old native of Rio de Janeiro was educated in Spain and for nearly a quarter-century held a chair at the University of Madrid, where he helped found that ancient institution's famed research center for humanistic studies. Long before the embers of World War II started glowing in Spain, he had lectured at many of the world's great universities, had been named an honorary professor at several Latin-American universities and had served as Spanish Ambassador to Germany.

With Franco's rise to power, Castro, like many of his eminent countrymen, went into permanent exile. While his home outside of Madrid was being used to garrison Insurgent-Nationalist troops, he turned to the Western Hemisphere and for two years was a visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin. He moved on to the University of Texas for the academic year 1939-40 and then established his headquarters here, after Princeton had completed what President Harold W. Dodds termed a thorough canvass of the field for the "most able man we could find."

A prolific writer, whose articles are welcomed by publications in a half-dozen countries, Castro is also a teacher among teachers. His "unofficial" evening courses, presented informally in his study for whoever might be interested, have given volunteer students a better grasp of the importance of human values, for Castro is always concerned with the "Spanish sense of life." To him, for example, bullfighting is never a sport, nor merely brutality. It is, as he sees it, a symbolic spectacle—pitting the individual against the unknown, the untamed, or man against the world.

For seeking to broaden man's understanding of man; for making the most of his gifts to "render all whom he teaches less deaf, less dumb, less blind;" for throwing a clearer light on a civilization which contributed so much to the building of a "New World in the West;" he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

Topics of the Town

Political Action Increases. From the local to the national level, political activity was on the increase. A Republican primary race had already developed in Princeton Township, where the Democrats were also ready to file; a two-term borough councilman had announced plans not to seek re-election; both parties had picked their candidates for Congress from this district; and the March 6 deadline for registration was less than a week away. Princetonians were talking, too, of the nation's first primary set for March 11 in New Hampshire, when General Eisenhower's strength against Senator Taft and President (of the University of Pennsylvania) Stassen would get its first test.

After six years on the borough governing body, George R. Grifling announced his decision to retire "in favor of the pressure of business activities" with the Matthews Construction Company. Democrats and Republicans alike could testify to the workmanlike job Mr. Grifling had done on the council since 1947. The Republicans had not yet made an announcement, but expectations were that they would come up with a replacement for Mr. Griffing and that Professor J. Dayton Voorhees would run again.

In the township, Charles Weigel of Mercer Road announced his intention to oppose incumbent John H. Wallace, Jr. in the primaries. A native of the township, with two children in the public schools which he himself attended, Mr. Weigel is 56, "has supported every worthwhile program for the benefit of the community and will continue to give support to such programs," the announcement of his candidacy states.

Democratic opposition was expected to come from Ned V. Joy, 31-year old instructor in the University Department of Politics. Mr. Joy, married and the father of two children, lives at 403-A Butler Avenue. A full slate, as yet unannounced, was also promised by the Democrats for the borough.

Congressman Charles R. Howell reported this week from Washington that he will seek a third term in the House of Representatives, while John J. Inglesby of Trenton, former freeholder and now deputy director of Trenton's Department of Public Safety, took his position opposite Mr. Howell as the Republican candidate. Party lines formed at once:

Mr. Howell: "I believe my record during my two terms in Congress, my previous service in the State Legislature and my long interest in government and civic affairs qualify me for continued service in Congress."

Mr. Inglesby: "The fourth Congressional district is entitled to a representative in Washington who can think independently, make his own decisions and not be a rubber stamp for the administration."

For U. S. Senator, the Republicans had had the incumbent H. Alexander Smith, on the firing line since last—July. The Democrats, still hoping to get Undersecretary of the Army Archibald Alexander, said they would not name their man until Tuesday morning.

Viewed from any level, it looked like one of the most interesting and most important election years in history.

Hospital Report. Princeton Hospital was "in the black" in 1951 for the second year in a row and the fourth time since it was founded, despite a record-breaking number of admissions and patient-days. The corporation's annual meeting was held Monday night in the assembly room of the First Presbyterian Church.

Revenue exceeded expenses by some $7,500, treasurer John H. Wallace, Jr., reported, although he warned of the constant threat from the "spectre of inflation." In contrast to expenses of $382,000 four short years ago, last year's figure was $550,500.

Administrator John W. Kauffman revealed that 1951 admissions totalled 3,908 infants and adults, a 13% increase over the preceding 12 months and well over 50% above the 1945 total. Patient-days were in excess of 28,000.

Other highlights of the session: Board President Curtis W. McGraw announced occupancy of the expanded hospital (from 90 beds and 18 bassinets to 140 beds and 21 bassinets) by next fall. Pressures upon the staff and facilities and the danger from disasters or epidemics will then be greatly eased.

Nearly 3,000 days of completely free services were given to 230 bed-patients, while 865 visits were made to the five clinics operated without charge. Payroll expenditures, totalling $300,000, went to an average of 157 employees over the year and constituted 56% of the total outlay.

Presentation of a testimonial gift to Norvell B. Samuels, who retired as a trustee after "rendering 18 years of outstanding service to the hospital and to Princeton."

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

In your issue of February 24-March 1, you printed an undated letter from a Mrs. James P. Kelley of 30 Charlton Street in regard to the intersection of William and Charlton Street.

I am pleased to advise you that in answer to two suggestions received February 14, 1952, four "SLOW" signs were erected at this intersection the following day, February 15. I believe it is unnecessary to state that "STOP" signs can only be erected at "through streets" and then only upon approval of the Motor Vehicle Commissioner.

P. MACKAY STURGES
Mayor

To clarify Mrs. Kelley's request of last week for warning signs at this intersection, it is worth reporting that it was dated February 11. Action on her part and others in the neighborhood brought the prompt municipal action.

Fame Spreads. An amateur radio operator tuned into Station OTC2, Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo, was intrigued with the subject of the 15-minute program: an account of the origin and activities of Princeton Group Arts and its contributions to intercultural relations in this community.

Henry J. Siegle of 42 Markham Road first caught the drift through a few familiar words in the Flemish language broadcast. An English translation followed, with the program proving to be part of a "forum of international good will" entitled "People Speak to People."

Highway Tragedy. Three persons were in Princeton Hospital this week and three others were dead as the result of a head-on collision between two automobiles Friday night on the Princeton-Lawrenceville Road. Corporal Stephen Gelak, 23, of Trenton, who had just returned from the front in Korea, was killed instantly. His mother, 51-year old Mrs. Julia Gelak, and Mrs. Hope Tuck Bedford, 32, of

It's New to Us

Thread Your Bobbin, Gals. For the woman who loves to sew, the sight of brand new fabric bolts can be as exciting as a parade. At Clayton's, 17 Palmer Square West, there are new materials by the hundred yards, enough to start a seamstress off on a sewing-bee spree.

Most of these fabrics are woven for the springtime. Irridescent pure-silk shantung gleams softly in palest grey, navy, natural or a raspberry that looks like sherbet. This gossamer is an incredible 48 inches wide and only $3.95 a yard. Can't you visualize it in the fullest and softest of skirts?

Nylon sheer is back in print. These editions are small and fine, tending to gentle pastels or greys. One has the Midas touch — the faintest of gold in its swirls. These are 39 inches wide at $2.29 a yard.

Puckered nylon relies for its interest on texture rather than on design. Navy, white or black in this, and we think it's just the setting for the whitest accessories you own.

Still with the sheers—minute red and white checks, almost invisible, are woven into imported silk organza. A deliciously demure dress for a young girl could be made from this.

We almost forgot to say that these materials, all of them, imported silk and all, will wash. It hardly seems possible to wash a cobweb, but that's what they say. The nylon, of course, dries almost before it's wet.

For practical every-day clothes, look at the Avondale plaids or the red cotton with variegated gold dots. (Washable; also in navy and white at $1.50 a yard.) Chambrays in stripes and plain are $1 a yard. Your whole wardrobe is right there, within a space of about ten feet. All you need to add is time and tools.

To match your new creation, Clayton's has Dobbs spring hats, rough or smooth straw, or summer-weight felt. And scarves! Try out a Vera square with a deep diagonal notch that makes the scarf convertible so you can wear it about six different ways. It's fashioned out of a sheer organza, stiff enough to look pert instead of wilted. For $2.

In the ready-made department we found shirts by Bryn Mawr with long or short sleeves (French cuffed, either way.) White with stripes in purple, red, green, black or brown. The purple caught our eye; wonder how it would look with grey flannel? Blouses are $3.50 and $3.95, depending on sleeve length.

Don't Burn the Baby. If you leave baby's bottle in a pan of hot water or a conventional bottle-warmer, you may get the milk so hot that baby's first gulp scalds his tongue. (Why say "you"? We've done it ourselves!)

At Farr's, 138 Nassau, in their What - Won't - They - Think - Of - Next Section, you can buy a bottle warmer with a built-in dial and —Continued on Page 11

NEW AMBULANCE AND ONE OF THE CARS IN THE FIRST ACCIDENT CALL IT ANSWERED

The First Aid Unit had received its new ambulance just 24 hours before Friday night's fatal accident on the Princeton-Lawrenceville Road. Members of the unit were able to help save the lives of three of the six persons in the crash by rushing them to Princeton Hospital. Shown above are John Silvester (of the Silvester Motor Company, through which the Packard-built ambulance was acquired); Charles Golden, William Whatley, Elmer Rodweller, Robert Davison and Albert Toto.

Snowden Lane, died shortly after being admitted to the hospital.

Listed as in fair condition after the crash were the drivers of the two cars, Bruce Bedford, Jr., 35, and George Gelak, 29, of Trenton; as well as Ross C. Foltz, 30, of Houston, Texas, a friend of the Bedfords who was a passenger in their car. Police said the accident, which crushed the entire front of both cars, occurred when the Gelak car swung into the lane of the Bedford automobile to pass a parked truck whose trailer had become detached a quarter of a mile beyond Bruere's Hill.

Mrs. Bedford, mother of two children ages 1 and 4, was expecting a third next month.

Carnival Acts Planned. Included among the members of the Princeton Skating Club who will appear in the Baker Rink carnival are Vera Ruth and Lu Ann Elliott, senior women champions and winners of last year's Middle Atlantic Pairs title; Gustave Hulit, senior men's champion; Kingsley Hubby, Faith Wing, Mrs. Edwin Hall, Michael Erdman and John Henderson. Performances of "Cracked Ice" are set for March 21 and 22.

Ellie Sonneman, 12-year old skater and actress (she's on numerous television shows) will return this year, as will Bill Kipp of Allentown, Pa. Both have been very well received here in the past.

Precision-trained groups from the Philadelphia Skating Club will be on hand, as will Barbara Davis and William Lemmon, runners-up last month in the Middle Atlantic Championships. Among the top-flight soloists will be Pierette Paquin of Quebec, Gold Medalist Dance Champion and currently a judge at the world figure skating championships in Paris.

The carnival's opening number will feature more than 100 children colorfully-costumed to represent pioneer days in the west. Specialty numbers of the solo and group variety are included in the program, for which the story and choreography are in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Estey of Lawrenceville. Miss Joan Dembeck, the club's senior professional, is directing music arrangements and ice planning.

HEAD-ON COLLISION: THREE DEAD, TWO IN THIS CAR

Mrs. Julia Gelak of Trenton and her son, Corporal Stephen Gelak, died when their car struck another driven by Bruce Bedford, Jr. His wife, Mrs. Hope Tuck Bedford, was the third victim of the worst accident here in over a decade.

Meeting on Planning. One of Princeton's fast-growing neighbors, West Windsor Township, will hold a public meeting Friday night at 8 to discuss the advisability of establishing a planning commission for the municipality. The program will take place in the Penns Neck Community Club and is sponsored by its Civic Committee.

Municipal planning in its various phases, with emphasis on the problems of a semi-rural community, will come up for discussion. Speakers will include Dr. Charles R. Erdman, Jr., Commissioner of Economic Development and chairman of the borough planning board; Dr. Gerald W. Breese, Director of the University's Bureau of Urban Research; and Russell Mount, West Windsor Township Committeeman.

COMMUNITY PLAYERS

The Magic Well, calculated to be as fresh and as welcome as the first harbinger of spring, will play a two-night stand in McCarter Theatre next Friday and Saturday, March 7 and 8. Music, laughter and an intriguing plot that delves into Irish folklore are the principal ingredients provided by the Community Players to assure an evening's entertainment.

The production is the work of Princeton's musical mayor, P. MacKay Sturges, who has been turning out tuneful melodies much longer than he's been grinding down the tax rate; and Alfred M. Wade, whose qualifications as a playwright and director have been solidified over a quarter century dating back to leadership of one of Princeton's best Triangle shows ("The Golden Dog.")

Cast in the leading roles are Mrs. Tristam Johnson, who played a major part in each of the two previous musicals produced by the Sturges-Wade team; and Karl Light, making his first appearance in a Players' show. Mr. Light has appeared with the Theatre Intime, the University Players, on Broadway and in television.

Others in the cast include Mrs. Welling Hankinson, Miss Dorothy Tilton, Henry Ross, Insley Pyne, Robert McManus and William Lippincott. Tickets are on sale at Hinkson's and the University Store.

MURRAY THEATRE

"The Trojan War Will Not Take Place," a new and somewhat controversial play by Jean Giradoux, will be presented in Murray Theatre on the University Campus by the Theatre Intime. Opening Tuesday night, it will run under the direction of John Capsis '49 (who was responsible for "King Lear" two years ago) through March 15. Sunday is excepted.

The play is a satirical comedy set in ancient Troy and dealing with the abduction of the beauteous Helen. Its presentation here is in conjunction with International Theatre Month, which seeks to prove on a world-wide basis that the theatre can promote international understanding.

Included in the cast of 35 are Maurine Mathews, in the role of Helen; Peggy Kalmar Allison, a veteran of Intime and University Players' productions; Selly Weber, Virginia Taylor and Penny Bush. The latter is the nine-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Bush of 391 Nassau Street.

Tickets are on sale at the University Store or may be purchased at the Murray Theatre box office.

THE EUROPA

The bill of fare through Sunday at 7 in this New Brunswick theatre includes "Dance Magic" with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and the amusing British comedy, "Tony Draws a Horse." Shows nightly at 7 and 9.

Starting Monday and running all week will be "Children of Paradise," a French epic that is set in Paris of the 1870's and is back for the third time by popular request. The French actors Arletty and Jean Louis Barrault are the principals in a drama which manager Louis Vassar informs us is "the French answer to 'Gone with the Wind'."

THE PLAYHOUSE

Death of a Salesman (Thurs.-Sat.), not quite the work of art that it was as a play, is still good motion picture entertainment. The dramatic story of a salesman who in Princeton between Saturday, March 1, and Sunday, March 9, as they seek to raise $42,470. Over half of the amount will be spent locally, Mrs. Geoffrey E. Sage, executive secretary of the Princeton chapter has pointed out.

Money turned over to the Red Cross national headquarters helps finance the blood program for the armed forces and underwrites relief extended to disaster areas. Here in Princeton, the Red Cross last year aided in the donation of 613 pints of blood to Princeton Hospital.

Other activities at the local level included 31,000 miles driven by members of the motor corps, largely on behalf of military personnel and their dependents; the handling of 112 hardship cases among the armed services; training of 129 women in home nursing and devotion of some 3,700 hours to patients here and at Fort Dix; first aid instruction given to nearly 700 men and women; and the direction of the Junior Red Cross program which enlists the interest of some 5,000 children in the Princeton area.

Air Reserve to Meet. An organization meeting for formation of a Volunteer Air Reserve Training Unit in Princeton will be held Wednesday night at 8 in the headquarters of Princeton Post No. 76, American Legion, at 55 Mercer Street. All Air Force Reserve officers from this area are invited to attend.

Discussion will center about plans to screen the records of volunteer air reserve officers to determine those who will be ineligible to retain their status after June 30. Those who do not qualify will be transferred to the inactive reserve and will become ineligible for participation in inactive duty training and accrual of points for promotion and retirement benefits.

Conference on Christianity. The aims and challenge of the Christian faith to Princeton undergraduates will be discussed in a five-day conference to open Sunday on the University campus. Selected as the theme for the extensive program of seminars, forums and assemblies is the provocative topic: "Christianity—Truth or Tripe?"

Arrangements for the occasion have been under way for more

SPORTS IN PRINCETON

Parents' Day. Versions of the story as told about town, printed on page one of The Newark News and broadcast on the radio differ, but events as they occurred in Baker Rink Saturday were of widespread interest. The developments, as reported by the University Press Club, went this way:

The Harrison Maple Leafs, playing the Princeton freshmen, were on the tough and rugged side in their tactics. Many thought they were unnecessarily so; among them, the mother of a member of the freshman team.

When her son was the target of some tough stuff and no penalty was called, she took to the ice. The referee learned how he stood with her, and so did the player from Harrison. The latter got the drift when one of the shovels used to scrape ice came sailing his way.

The boy's father became involved in the rhubarb before peace was restored and the unperturbed Maple Leafs went on to record a 5-3 triumph. Monday morning, while Nassau Hall was investigating and the Associated Press was calling to ask if by any chance there were pictures of the occasion, inquiries were received by the Athletic Association asking "when does the mothers' hockey team begin practice?".

Top of the Ladder in View. When Cornell beat Dartmouth at Hanover Saturday night, it was the Ithacans' eighth victory in nine league games and sent them ahead of Princeton in the Eastern standings. With Cornell playing a pair of non-league teams this week while the Tigers take on Harvard Friday and Dartmouth Saturday, hopes here are that Sunday morning will find the Nassau quintet installed at the top of the heap.

Cappy Cappon's forces were actually there for about an hour and a half last Friday. Their 65-59 victory over Yale at New Haven was registered before Cornell topped Harvard at Cambridge and the Tigers were briefly in front. Present standings show Cornell 8-1, Princeton 7-1 and Penn 6-2, with all others, including defending champion Columbia, out of the running.

Yale's occasionally stubborn but strictly outmoded zone defense and its deliberate style of attack wasn't as hard for Princeton to solve when the two teams met in the Payne Whitney Gym as it had been for the Tigers here three days earlier. The final score was closer than the was scoring ten points to nine for the whole Yale team. His mates added four and the Orange and Black rode in from there.

Fred collected 15 for the evening and for the fourth game in row, four of the Princeton starters were in double figures. Balance of this sort has carried the team to the point where it is aiming for its seventh and eighth consecutive victories this weekend. After that, it will be Rutgers here Tuesday night and Lafayette at Easton Saturday in a pair of non-league games before the vital clashes with Columbia and Penn on March 12 and 15 in Dillon Gym.

Barring an unanticipated upset (Dartmouth came within two points of upending the Tigers here last winter), four games will decide the championship: Cornell-Penn, Cornell-Columbia, Princeton-Columbia and Princeton-Penn. Of these, the Ithacans will play both theirs on the road; Penn gets a split; and the Tigers have Dillon Gym in their favor.

The Quakers, on the other hand, have Ernie Beck in their favor and pennant contenders can defeat the remaining second division outfits it most play, such a turn of events would wind the three leaders up with a 10-2 record apiece. If one of them doesn't make it, Cornell appears most likely to fall by the wayside, for the Red has not been impressive on the road.

Busiest Weekend. The most active weekend of the winter sports season will be launched with Friday's basketball game against Harvard and climaxed by the Saturday night encounter with Dartmouth. In between, the hockey team meets Dartmouth in Baker Rink, the wrestlers go against Lehigh in Dillon Gym and the fencers and swimmers take on their Yale counterparts—all on Saturday.

Hopes are that the Tiger hockey team can rally from its woebegone showing against Yale, which not only erased any chance it had in the Pentagonal League but was a distinct disappointment to more than 2,000 present for the Alumni Day battle last Friday. The 4-0 shutout which the Elis inflicted was the first whitewash suffered by Princeton in three seasons.

The New Haven contingent continually outskated the Orange and Black, showing its greatest superiority on defense but generally giving a better all-around performance. Blair Torrey had something of an off day in the cage but the able sophomore might have paved the way to a victory with better support when the Elis were attacking and some degree of scoring ability on the part of the Nassau forward lines.

Princeton's interest in the wrestling match with Lehigh will be centered primarily around Brad Gluss, for the visitors have too much balance to give the Tigers hope of an upset. The Nassau captain is unbeaten in six bouts this winter.

Yale's all-conquering swimming team can name the score against the Tigers, with only Bob Brawner in the breaststroke sure of a first place. The Elis' dual meet string stretches back over a seven-year period, although they don't schedule Ohio State and Michigan, a couple of teams which could beat them handily.

Overtime Victory. Frank Perna's one-hander gave Princeton High a thrilling 52-50 overtime triumph over Hamilton in Trenton last Friday, in one of the most closely-contested games of the season for the Little Tigers. The victory was the 14th for the winners against only three losses and avenged an earlier defeat by the Hornets.

Perna's shot climaxed a last-quarter surge by Princeton. The Little Whitney Gym as it had been for the Tigers here three days earlier. The final score was closer than the 14-point margin that had separated the two teams in Dillon Gym, but the Tigers led by ten points throughout most of the second half and were never in much danger.

It was largely the point-a-minute pace that Tritschler set in the third period at New Haven that broke the game open. While he

The Quakers, on the other hand, have Ernie Beck in their favor and that may very conceivably determine the outcome. Of course, Princeton and Cornell must each lose once more to give the Red and Blue a chance even to tie for the title.

The possibility of the league's first three-way tie in its half century of activity is by no means remote. It would require only this fairly logical sequence in the key games:

Cornell to lose to Penn at the Palestra a week from Saturday but to beat Columbia in New York the following Monday. Princeton to trim the somewhat faded Lions three days before it meets Penn, with the Quakers then turning the tables on the Nassau quintet.

thermostat. You set the dial to the size of the bottle (two to eight ounces). Then you slide the indicator to forty or seventy-two degrees, and plug the warmer in. The thermostat shuts off the current at the temperature you indicate and leaves it there.

It's going to cost you something, of course, to throw away that pan you've been warming the bottle in. This little gadget costs $12.75.

If you aren't interested in bottle-warming (or even if you are, come to think of it) you may want to know about a new travel iron they have at Farr's. It is wired to take any kind of current on the continent of Europe (and probably South America, up to and excluding Antartica). It comes in a handsome tan case made of imitation alligator hide and neatly handled—a little piece of luggage in its own right.

For a Better Letter. The new stationery at Price's (86 Nassau, next to the First National Bank) will make a correspondent out of anybody. Eaton makes this varied new line. Their engraved florals—steel dye engraved, mind you, not printed—on dove grey or white look as though they were waiting for the mot juste. These are rather formal papers, and so is "Silver Accent," a formal-sized fold in white with silver border.

A pinkish-beige folded note paper has the tracery of a white lily design; a cool and rather mannered way about it. A more casual note could be written on "Vacation Scenes," a small folded paper with its front entirely given over to a rural view. "Needlework," another design more casual than some, has featherstitching all around each sheet.

Some of the loveliest colors we've seen in writing paper are used in Eaton's ensemble: a set that contains two different sizes of note paper and envelopes. There's a good rich grey with bright yellow deckle, or blue with a rose. And for those of you who use green ink, the green deckle on the white paper is a stout Kelly that would be just the match.

One design called "Demure" has faint grey lines you could use for writing guides if you wish. Envelopes for this pattern are richly lined in contrasting colors.

Men write letters, too. (If infrequently). Eaton remembers them with a ripple paper called Calais. Simple, single sheets in grey-blue with a deckle edge. White, too, if he's conservative.

Those Glass Rings Again. To protect your cocktail tables, you might like to use the "Ghosters" they have at the Wine and Game Shop, 6 Nassau. They are shallow foam-rubber cups, $1.95 for eight. "Snugs your glass with a bear hug and clings to your drink like a shadow." Well, that's what they say, anyhow.

Each of the eight is a different color so you should have no trouble with the second round of drinks, provided your guests can still say, "Mine is the tonsil-colored ghoster."

Elegance From the Past. Seventy-five years ago, a French hostess used tiny silver butterflies, richly enameled, to hold her place-cards. Today, they are at the Silver Shop, 59 Palmer Square West, the enamel still delineating the brilliance of each butterfly. The six are all different, about two inches long, all arranged, like some collection of lepidoptera, on a cushion of white satin.

Here is a Crown Dresden milkmaid, 100 years old, modeled with the classic delicacy of Dresdenware. The molds and factory buildings were destroyed during World War II so this piece is an exceptional collector's item.

In silver, the shop has a tall wine jug that would keep any beverage cold on a hot day. A silver soup tureen over 80 years old is so simple and chaste that it could serve on any modern table. It was made by Theodore Starr, silversmith who preceded the firm of Black, Starr and Gorham. Stop by when you're on Palmer Square; it's like visiting another century.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

loses his mind through delusions of success is still unusual and different, and as such deserves attention. Acting by the veteran Frederic March is not always believable, but the supporting cast headed by Mildred Dunnock is strong.

Invitation (Sun.-Tues.) casts Dorothy McGuire as a young woman who presumably has everything including wealth and a handsome, adoring husband. Then she finds out that not only did her father hire her husband to marry her but she has only a few more months to live. The slick, typical Hollywood ending is somewhat offset by good acting.

Viva Zapata! (Wed.-Sat.) is John Steinbeck's drama of the Mexican who led a rebellion in the early days of this century. Marlon Brando is in the title role, with Jean Peters opposite him. Action develops on a grand scale to turn the picture into a slambang horse opera; Mr. Steinbeck's thoughts on social reform are as mundane as they come.

THE GARDEN

Anne of the Indies (Fri.-Sat.) is a full helping of hokum liberally sprinkled—in an attempt to disguise its true nature—with almost continuous action. Jean Peters is cast as a 17th century pirate queen who captures ships and murders crews but loses her heart to the man (Louis Jourdan) sent to capture her. Typical Grade B adventure fare.

Captain Blood (Mon.-Tues.) doesn't miss by much being one of the early sound films. Now 16 years old, it's a blood-and-thunder piece spun on the high seas and giving Errol Flynn a chance to alternate between romance and sword play. Olivia deHaviland, Basil Rathbone and Guy Kibbee are others in the cast.

Tom Brown's School Days (Wed.-Thurs.) is a faithful portrayal of the book that told of the rugged life in British schools during the first half of the 19th century. Brutal hazing made the careers of younger boys most unpleasant, but certain developments—among them courage of one of the victims—eventually brought reforms.

Submarine Command (Fri.-Sat.) bridges the gap from Pacific warfare against the Japs to the fighting in Korea, recording the experiences of a sub captain who felt he must atone for a costly decision. More action—what there is of it is fine—and much less slow-moving dialogue would make this a good picture. With William Holden, Nancy Olson and William Bendix.

Tigers overcame a five-point deficit as time ran out in the final period, finally knotting the score in the last 60 seconds. The two teams traded baskets as the three-minute overtime period began, and then Perna threw in the deciding two points. After a flurry of Hamilton shots failed to score Princeton froze the ball for the final minute.

The scores at the quarters illustrate the closeness of the game. Princeton trailed by one at the end of eight minutes, led by two at the half, and was only three points behind as the buzzer signalled the end of the third period. Four men hit double figures for Princeton, Tom Perks with 13, Buster Thomas 12, Harry Kahny 11 and Perna 10.

Wednesday's game with Lawrenceville and this Friday's home encounter with Dunellen complete the Little Tigers' regular season schedule. The state championships will get underway next week.

Hun Triumphs. Scoring heavily in the final quarter, Hun's basketball team easily downed Admiral Farragut Academy, 54-43, Friday in the last home contest of the season for the Red and Black.

Alan McLam, high scorer all season for Hun, again led the attack with 20 points. Many of these were scored in the last period when Hun got 16 to the visitors' nine points.

Hun will conclude its schedule on Saturday when it meets the George School, after having played Delharton at Morristown Wednesday night. B.M.I. will provide the opposition in the first round of the State prep school tournament.

Thoughts of Spring. Eddie Donovan, fourth coach of the Princeton baseball team since 1945, is ready to call out his batterymen. Headed by Captain Ray Chirurgi and Harry Brightman, they'll work out in Dillon Gym before warmer weather and Dave Sisler come along. The latter will not be available until the basketball season ends March 15.

A 22-game schedule has been arranged for the defending champions of N.C.A.A. district two. They'll be in action at University Field four less times than last year and don't play a home contest until April 11. Donovan's biggest problems are a catcher who can come close to replacing hard-hitting Will Prior and a third baseman to step into Ed Irvin's shoes.

Victory After Defeat. Mrs. Betty Howe Constable reached the semi-finals of the women's national squash championships in Boston last week before being eliminated in the search for the title she last held in 1950. However, her twin sister was the eventual winner. Mrs. Bayard Stockton, 3d was another Princetonian entered in the tournament.

Mrs. Constable was among the Americans who defeated their opponents in an international match with the touring English team. Her victory helped return the challenge cup given the winner of this event to the United States.

Miscellany. Motorists who have reserved their 1952 license plates may call for them beginning Saturday (until noon) and thereafter (Monday to Friday, 9 to 5) at the Motor Vehicle Agency, 354 Nassau Street. Foster D. Jemison, the agent, reminds those who have not yet applied that they must have proof of second inspection of their car or truck before doing so.

James Kuist of 31 Library Place won the oratorical contest sponsored by American Legion Post 76 at Princeton High School. A senior there, Kuist finished ahead of his classmate, Miss Carol Search of 120 Prospect Avenue and will participate in the county finals at Trenton March 21. Mrs. C. E. Black, Clinton Kinney and John W. French were the judges.

The Visiting Nurse Committee of the Social Service Bureau has added Mrs. Mary Cashill, R.N., to its staff. Born and raised here, Mrs. Cashill received her training at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, and is a former night supervisor at Princeton Hospital.

The visiting nurses have their headquarters at 134 Nassau Street, where a call to 1760 will bring nursing care. Visits will be made free of charge if the family income necessitates such service; otherwise an adjustable fee up to a maximum of $3 for one treatment is made to supplement income from the Community Chest.

Mrs. Lillian V. S. Stoul, assistant treasurer and customer relations officer of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company, received a diploma from the New Jersey Bankers Association Public Relations School conducted at Princeton University during February. George R. Cook, 3d, executive vice-president of the bank, who completed the course last year, attended the post-graduate sessions for the three-day period.

Dr. Paul R. Chesebro, Hun School headmaster, has set April 5 as the date for competitive examinations for two scholarships which the school awards annually. Given in memory of the late Dr. John G. Hun and John L. Kuschke, they are open to all boys in Mercer County who will enter any grade from 9 through 12 next fall.

William Rogers of Princeton is among the present holders of these scholarships. Further details may be obtained from Thomas B. Hartmann, the school's director of admissions.

William N. Boehm, manager of the Western Union office here, will speak Thursday night at 8 to the Men's Club of the Methodist Church. He will discuss "The Evolution of the Telegraph."

Miss Leslie Van Zandt, a senior at Miss Fine's School, is one of the finalists in the poetry-reading contest to be held Saturday at Newark-Rutgers University. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Van Zandt of 120 Prospect Avenue.

How Long Can A Woman Look Young?

Helena Rubinstein offers new hope when nature reduces the supply of estrogenic hormones!

HERE is the established scientific explanation of how Helena Rubinstein's Estrogenic Hormone preparations can make women look younger.

Doctors have discovered that up to the age of 35, a woman's skin receives an abundant supply of natural ESTROGENS through the blood stream. These natural estrogens enable the supporting under-tissues of your skin to retain MOISTURE. It is this moisture which gives your skin the full, firm look that is the secret of a young woman's beauty.

When nature's supply of estrogens begins to diminish after 35, your under-skin loses its natural moisture, and your outer skin actually begins to collapse. The skin of your face, neck and hands becomes flabby.

Now it is possible to counteract this aging appearance. When applied externally, through gentle massage, Helena Rubinstein's Estrogenic Hormone Cream and Oil help your skin retain its vital moisture. Your under-skin fills out normally, and your outer-skin looks young again! It's a thrilling experience.
